Fives in the Daily Press

To the Editor of Squash Rackets and Fives.

Sir,—I have recently failed to find any word of the Open Singles Championship at Rugby Fives in that morning newspaper which I have long regarded as an institution possessed of an almost infallible authority. This has compelled me both to take another paper and at the same time to wonder whether omissions of like importance are countenanced in those portions of the paper in which I have only interest of an ordinary reader and no special knowledge or enthusiasm. It would indeed be curious if a revolution might take place in some country and not be chronicled because the Editor did not happen to have been to that particular place. To me the exclusion of Fives appears no less arbitrary and I wonder whether you, Sir, could bring the growing influence of "Squash Rackets and Fives" to bear upon that newspaper to make its sports columns reliable enough for one who considers he knows something about sport to trust that the rest of the paper is equally authoritative. At present I am doomed to ignorance upon this question as I cannot afford two papers! I enclose my card.

Yours faithfully,

DISGUSTED.
